AFTER THE PUGILISTS.

THE LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE WILL PROSECUTE THE "SPORTS,"

Bowden Has Not Resigned as Manager of the Daval Athletic Club. The Proposed Fitzsimmons Fight.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Jan. 29.-The Law and Order Langue has resolved to make it lively for the principals and the aiders and abettors in the Corbett-Mitchell prize fight. To-night Rev. W. N. Connelly, local agent of the league, called on the Southern Associated Prezz correspondent and asked that the following statement be made:

"In the matter of the prize fight, we hold that the injunction granted by Judge Call was an evasion of the prescribed statutes, and if the State authorities do not very soon bring the matter up for review in the Supreme Court the league will do so. I have heard that the Governor has instructed the Attorney-General to follow this line of action."

To Fight if the State Weakens.

"What provisions have been made to resecute this matter?" The Interactional League has pieced ample funds at the disposal of its local agents for this purpose, and has given instructions for the soil to be pushed forward at the first sign of weakening on the part of the State. The League is determined that such an exhibition as took place in this city Thursday shall not be repeated in the country if means can be found to prevent it. It was called a 'glove contest,' but Mitchell was rendered entirely unconscious from the terrific force of a blow, and that it would end in this manner, in favor of or the other fighters, was fully foreseen, as I understand that a 'finish fight' means a fight until one of the men is unable to respond when time is called."

Bowden Has Not Resigned. J. E. T. Bowden, manager of the Duval Athletic Club, denies emphatically that he has left the Duval Athletic Club.

"And," tays he, "there is not a word of truth in the statement that the club has disbanded. It has not disbanded. I have not left it, and I have not heard any compassible exception of one, with my man-agement. We have found that prize-fights are not against the law, and after all this trouble and expense it would be fool-ish for me to pull out. This club owns rights which are valuable. One of them is a lease on a part of the fair grounds I'm not going to throw that up.

The Fitzsimmons Fight. "Will the club offer a purse for Fitz-immons and Creedon?"

"As it now stands it will not." "Will it offer purses for any other event?"

"None that I know of yet. We don't know exactly what we are going to do, but we have not dishanded."

"THE PRODIGAL SON."

A Rather Unique Play Presented in Paniomime at the Theatre

"The Prodigal Son," a play without words, as interpreted by Edwin Clearly's words, as interpreted by Edwin Clearly's company of French players at the Theatre last evening, was one of the most unique performances of the season. A play without words would appear to be preposterous to many, but this company of artists obtiterated all doubts of this question last evening. What little there is lost by the absence of words is doubled for by the beautiful descriptive music of Monsieur Lachaumee. Heretofore pantomime has always been associated with Columbine at l. Earlequin, who by that simple pranks amused the young folks as well as many of the older ones. Many of those who attended the performance last evening expected to see a pantomime of this ing expected to see a pantomime of this same class, but before the curtain had fallen on the first act they were shown fallen on the first act they were shown by this clever company what a pantomime really is.

The plot of the play is founded upon the weil-known parable of the same name in the Bible.

As "Pierrot Junior," the prodigal son, Mile. Pilar-Morin has the leading character, and she is thoroughly capable of sustaining it. She acts under the difficulty of a white mask, but this does not appear to mar her facial expressions. Her eyes are her fortune, and by their wedgetful expression she interpreted her lines so clearly that no one could mistake their meaning.

M. Courtes, "Pierriot, Senior," also wears a white mask, but like Mile. Pilar-Morin he does not appear to be inconvenienced by it. M. Courtes is a comedian of the Paris legitimate stage, and all through the performance last evening, although

M. Laciamme, the practice of the troupe, is one of the first musicians of Paris. His playing is beautiful and he varies his notes with the actions of the tors so as to keep in perfect harmony with them. This wonderful company of pantomim-

The Affair Was the Outcome of a Drunken

Bevelry.

In the bar-room of Albert Dickerson yesterday, at 2:30 o'clock, Abram Meredith (colored) shot and wounded William dith (colored) shot and wounded William Johnson, another negro, in the head. The wounded man was taken in an unconscious condition to the almshouse. It was discovered that the ball had entered the brain. Johnson had not recovered consciousness at a late hour last night. His condition is critical, and his death is expected at any moment. Meredith was arrested by Sergeant Matthews and locked up in the First police-station.

I endeavored to interview the prisoner, but he was in such an intoxicated condition I could not obtain his version of the affair. From other scurces I learned that

TO RELIEVE THE POOR. A Creditable Entertainment by the Scouts and Red Men.

The concert given last night at the Academy of Music for the relief of the poor, by the Union Democratic Scouts and the Red-Men's Relief Association, was a very creditable affair. The programme was prepared by Capt. Frank Cunningham, upon whose taste it reflects great credit. The West-End Choral Society and the Juvenile Glee Club showed considerable ability in the rendering of their se-lections. The Walker Light Guard, in their bayonet exercise, and the Scouts in their march, were very good. The athletic ex-hibition by messrs. NO ELECTION BELD.

The Meeting of Field Officers is Dismissed by the Governor.

The field officers of the First Brigade assembled in the Exchange Hotel yesterday morning and again began belloting for the position of Brigadier General.

Major H. C. Burrows, of Culpeper, was summoned home on Sunday evening by the illness of his wife. He is a warm supporter of Colonel Naile, and the balloting yesterday morning was five to four. Another ballot had a similar result, and loting yesterday morning was five to four.

Another ballot had a similar result, and the four colonels were then appointed a committee to wait on the Governor and to inform him of the situation. The mander-in-Chief subsequently ordered the meeting to adjourn, but no time was specified for another election, and matters stand just as they were when Gen-eral Anderson was appointed Adjutant

Colonel Naile, who is the senior colonel in the brigade, will, of course, be acting Brigadier-General until an election takes Detective John Hall made one of his lucky captures when he recovered on Saturday afternoon a handsome gold watch and chain, which were lost on the street on the 23d of last December by Miss Herndon, daughter of Capt. Joseph Herndon, who lives at 2508 Q street.

The detective was in a pawn shop Sat-urday afternoon when a negro entered and asked a loan of $40 on a gold watch which he carried. Mr. Hall, upon inspecting the time-piece, identified it by the initials engraved in the inside of the case as the property of Miss Herndon. The negro, who had found it on the street some time ago made no concealment of the fact, and gave up the watch without trouble.

He had informed his employer of his find at the time he picked up the jewelry in the street, and as no claimant had appeared, he regarded it as his property.

Conflicting Testimony About a Pemand Made for the Correction of a Report.

BOYDTON, VA., Jan. 29.-Special.-A case attracting unusual interest was tried in our County Court last Safurday. This trial grew out of a personal difficulty trial grew out of a personal difficulty between two depot agents of the Atlantic and Danville railroad, over some freight transactions, in which H. P. Gill, Jr., agent at Gill's station, charged R. E. Daniel, agent at Boskerville depot, with having drawn a pistol on him in his own office on the 5th instant, and at the same tall agent at Baskerville depot, with having agent at Baskerville depot, with having agent at Baskerville depot, with having agent at Baskerville depot.

present when the difficulty occurred save the two agents, and their evidence was very conflicting. Gill testified that Daniel demanded of him, with a drawn pistol, that he should make a written correction of a report he had made to the railroad officials at Portsmouth, and that for fear of being shot he compiled. Daniel denied this charge, and said he drew his pistolto defend himself against the threats of Gill, who became very angry soon after getting into the office.

The case was fully and ably argued by counsel on both sides, the argument lasting until a late hour in the night. The great interest felt in the trial was shown by the large crowd of men in attendance, wany of whom lived several miles in the many of whom lived several miles in th country, who stayed to see the end. At 10 o'clock the jury reported that they were unable to agree, whereupon the court dis-charged them. The jury stood seven tor acquittal and five for conviction. Theories About Protection From Cold. Garments made from pure silk are ex-ceedingly comfortable, but very expensive. Thin silk worn under flannel adds greatly to the protection afforded by the against chills, and likewise prevents the impleasant sensation of friction. This flannel socks, worn under merino or woolen ones, for a good remedy for cold fact.

The principal conclusions to be drawn

The principal conclusions to be drawn from the foregoing paragraph may be thus briefly stated:

1. As a protection against cold, woolen garments of equal thickness are much superior to linen or cetton, and should always be worn for underciothing. Fursand leather are serviceable against great cold and especially against severe wind Waterproof clothing should be reserved for very wet weather, and generally for persons who are not taking exercise when exposed to it. exposed to it.

exposed to it.

2. The value of several layers of clothing as compared with a single warm garment, should be borne in mind. An extra layer, even of thin material, next the skin, is often very valuable.

3. As a protection against cold, a garment should not fit closely to the body, but should be comparatively loose and easy, so that a layer of air is interposed between it and the skin. A loosely-woven material is warmer than one of an opposite character.
